BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

A stage highly favorable to the Allies was reached today in the great battle on the plains of Flanders.

The German armies are fighting themselves to exhaustion in fruitless attacks against the British and their chances of breaking through are becoming more remote daily.

All day Sunday the Germans battered in vain the British lines and when darkness compelled a halt the front stood just where it had stood in the morning except at one point in Belgium. As a result of the heavy German pressure at Neuve Eglise the British gave up the village for the second time. This withdrawal, however, was without any military importance for numerous villages on the Flanders front have changed hands time after time since this titanic struggle began last Wednesday morning.

The Germans tried vainly to force their way into Baillieu—a strategic railway center upon the Hazebrouck road—but were flung back leaving the field covered with numberless dead and wounded.

Sunday's fighting centered along the twelve mile front lying from a point north of Merville to the sector of Neuve Eglise, in Belgium. Violent attacks were driven home by the Germans in this zone in their efforts to deploy into Nieppe Wood, which lies immediately west of Baillieu.

The Germans advanced in waves and north of Merville seven assaults were delivered.

At one point the British front was slightly dented, but before the Germans could consolidate their new position the British counter attacked, hurling the enemy back to his old positions.

(Merville is ten miles west of Armentieres and Neuve Eglise about four miles north by northwest of Armentieres.)

The Germans are still far away from their immediate objective in this sector.

There has been another flare-up of fighting east of the British base of Amiens against which the Germans launched their original drive on March 21. Success attended Anglo-French arms in that region, as well as farther north.

The British improved their position in the Hangard sector (about ten miles east of Amiens) while the French carried out a local operation which was officially described as "completely successful."

Prisoners were captured by both the French and British as well as machine guns.

The Allied counter thrusts are gaining momentum on all parts of the front. The British and French troops are showing the "Do or die" spirit asked for by Field Marshal Haig and confidence grows now that General Foch, the master strategist of Europe, is directing the movements of the Allied armies.

FARMERETTE TALKS TO GARDEN CLUB

The Ulster Garden Club met on Saturday the past week instead of Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Tappen on Maiden Lane, in order that the club members might hear from one of the Farmerettes of Vassar College.

Mr. Service first addressed the club, regarding the school garden work which will be carried on this year under the supervision of the garden club. Only vegetables will be raised by the children in their school gardens, and this year there will be instruction given the boys and girls, more time being devoted to such instruction than to inspection. There will be held in the schools two classes of such teaching, one for the younger and one for the older pupils, covering 36 periods of 45 minutes each and this work completed will be recognized and counted by the regents. If so desired, men and women from Cornell University will address the pupils also. Another matter which will be brought before the scholars will be that of raising chickens and other food animals.

Miss Stuart also spoke to those present regarding her plans and hopes for a community kitchen in this city, where canning, preserving, etc., will be done. Following out the plan in this country, Miss Stuart is of the opinion that there should be three such kitchens in the city.

Mrs. Lawton, president of the club then showed one of the Bird Lovers' Association posters from Cleveland, and the club thought it desirable to act along similar lines here in the hope of saving many of our birds from being shot.

Miss Garrett of Vassar College, was next introduced and told graphically, plainly and comprehensively of the farmerette experiment at the college last year and its plans for this coming season.

Last year there were twelve girls who spent eight weeks working in the college gardens and on the college farm, and while they did everything else, such as housekeeping of any sort, the performing of any social duties. Not only did the girls do all of the hand work, but they operated all of the farm machinery. At first they were paid less than men as it was expected that they would not be able to accomplish as much. They showed, however, that as soon as they got the knack of the work, they could get just as good results, and were then paid as much as the men. They began by working six hours a day, then gradually increased to eight and ten hours, working from 4:30 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. One of the best results of the experiment, which was really too big to be counted as a by-product was the fact that there were absolutely no cases of nervous prostration among the girls doing this work. They needed plenty of good plain food, but less sleep than when engaged in more nervous mental work. This year motor trucks will be installed for the carrying of the produce, and about eighty girls will be employed for the big truck farm, showing pretty conclusively how successful from every viewpoint the movement has been.

Miss Garrett said that with one exception of a girl imbued with the farm spirit before coming to college, the girls undertook the work from purely patriotic motives, as there was not as much in it as in the walks

SOLDIERS KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Central Islip, L. I., April 15.—Three soldiers were killed, nineteen were seriously injured and about sixty were slightly hurt early today when five cars of a Long Island train were derailed two miles east of this place.

All of the injured were taken to the Central Islip State hospital. The derailment is believed to have been caused by spreading rails.

The train was carrying soldiers from the National Army on furlough from Camp Upton to New York.

The train, made up of thirteen cars, was running at more than fifty miles an hour when it was derailed. Five cars were telescoped. Late reports say the wreckage caught fire and is still burning.

Two of the cars rolled down a five-foot embankment.

All soldiers who escaped injury are being transported to New York on other trains which were rushed to the scene of the wreck.

It is believed that all of the men aboard the train are natives of New York and other nearby cities, as a large division from a southern camp, recently arrived at Camp Upton, was made up largely of easterners.

Army men said the train was solidly packed with men, a majority of whom were starting on their furlough leave of absence since being ordered to Camp Upton from other camps.

COUNT CZERNIN HAS RESIGNED

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, April 15.—Count Czernin, the Austro-Hungarian foreign minister, has resigned according to a report received from Vienna today by way of Amsterdam.

It was said that the resignation was accepted by Emperor Charles.

It is supposed that the resignation of Count Czernin was brought about by the recent disclosures in Paris that Emperor Charles made overtures for a separate peace a year ago. Count Czernin made unsuccessful efforts to clear the emperor to the satisfaction of Germany, but succeeded only in getting further and further into difficulty. The report of Count Czernin's resignation had been preceded by a report from Copenhagen that he would make a speech on the international situation on April 20.

No Way Like "New Way."

Layton C. Quackenbush, formerly with the Canfield Supply Co., but who has been traveling for some time through New England for a machinery concern, has returned to Kingston and has accepted a responsible position in the engine and machinery department of the Canfield Supply Co., where his many friends will be glad to see him again.

In life which most of them had chosen after their college education.

It would seem that much practical good to the entire community should be the outcome of this particular meeting of the Garden Club.

Kerhonkson's B. S. L.

Some very malicious persons have circulated the report that Floyd W. Fuller of Co. I, 1st Battalion, 153rd Depot Brigade, Camp Dix, had skipped the train at Middletown Friday, April 5th. Now as there is not one iota of truth in the statement, I am sending this item for publication and for the satisfaction of his friends and to vindicate our boy in khaki.

HYLAND BOYS UNDER FIRE

Quite Lively on American Sector—Shrapnel Fell All Around, but Nobody Hurt—The Usual Plea for Letters and News From Home.

The following is a letter received by Mrs. P. Hyland, this city, from her son, James, now at the front in France:

March 17, 1918.

Dear Mother—I received your two letters of Feb. 18-19; was very glad to hear from you and to know you are all well. We also received the box you sent before Christmas, candy and cigarettes. They were fine.

Well, mother, Tom and myself are well. We were up to the front four days. We just came back to our rest camp. The sector we were in was very quiet for some time, the French told us, but since the Americans came there it is quite lively. The first day we went we were unloading a truck on the road back of the front line when the enemy started to shell. They were dropping all around us for a while, but fortunately no one was hurt by the shrapnel so far. The digout we were in was a good deep one fifty feet under the ground, so the shells did not trouble us very much. Yes, mother, those two fellows you spoke of in your letter are in this company and Dennis Carrigan was in the dugout with me. You can tell his lady friend in Kingston that he is well.

The weather is very nice here now. Father Duffy said mass on the hill near our camp this morning. When you write tell me which of the Howard boys were drafted. Dear mother, when you write tell me all the news. I suppose there are a great many changes since I left. Tell all the folks to write. I wrote to all of you a couple of weeks ago. I wonder how Robert likes it in Florida. There are fellows from all over Ulster county around here. Is pop working in the same place yet? Tell him to write me. Do you ever see any of the people from West Hurley. Give my best regards to them all. If you see Roy Avery tell him I would be glad to hear from him, also the Joyce family. Now, tell all the boys I know that I was asking for them. Well, mother, I have not much more to tell you this time only we are well. Tom looks fine; he is getting stout. The army life seems to agree with him. Will close now hoping this letter will find you all in good health. With love to mother, father and sisters, your loving son, Goodbye, JAMES.

Priv. James E. Hyland, 165th U. S. Infantry, Company H, American Expeditionary Forces.

ULSTER CO. MOVIES IN CAMP IN FRANCE

Also a Lecture on Judge Parker at the Y. M. C. A. Reminds Lone Ulster County Mass of Home.

Somewhere in France, March 26.—I just received some delayed mail, nearly two weeks older than some received a few days ago. I suppose on account of the large quantity coming over a great deal goes astray and "sees France" before finally reaching us. Never mind, it's better late than never. I also received a couple more papers. Mentioning papers, I happened to have received a Semi-Weekly on one of the days. I went out where Enlist is and when I mentioned the fact to him he was delighted. It was the first home paper he had seen since he left the states. I gave it to him and he surely seemed to appreciate a bit of home news, judging from the smile on his face. So now when I receive a paper I save it and as I go over several times a week I can give them to him. Grant is also wondering if he can get a paper. He is at the same place as formerly. That is, he was the last time I heard from him.

Just to show you how famous Ulster county people are I will say that one of our local men took up about one-half of a lecture at the "Y" the other night. One of the Y. M. C. A. workers talked to the boys about Judge A. B. Parker of Esopus. His topic was the struggle for the chairmanship of the National Convention when the "Back to the Garage" cartoon originated. He sure gave the boys the dope, too.

Ulster county again broke before me at one of the movie shows. I was expecting to see John Bunny or Charlie Chaplin when behold they flashed on the screen, "How Innates are Treated at a Model Institution in New York (Near Kingston, N. Y.)" and then followed a picture showing, I think, parts of the Napanoch Reformatory. Am I at home in France? Well, I'll think I am at K. O. H. if they keep on with that stuff. Of course this is all great stuff for the western men and granger stuff for me. Maybe they will show that film in one of your delayed letters, you ask what did I do Christmas. That is easy. I walked the decks of the good ship — and looked at the nearby shore and cursed to beat the band because I was not allowed to eat my Christmas dinner on French soil. We were given free range of the ship "Everywhere except the bridge and the crow'snest" as the officer of the deck put it. We played cards, pounded the pianos, discussed what you at home were doing and

FREDERICK HOFFMAN

Private, Q. M. C., A. P. O. 705, A. E. F., France. Went to Camp Dix, N. J., in September, 1917, with the second contingent of Ulster county conscripts. Assigned to Co. L, 310th Inf. Transferred to Co. F, 303rd Engineers. Asked to be assigned to immediate overseas service and was one of 700 men from Camp Dix selected to go to France in the Q. M. C. Sailed December 4 and has been in an artillery camp somewhere in France since shortly after Christmas. Writer of the "Fred" letters from Camp Dix, Governor's Island and France published in The Freeman. The photograph from which the above cut was made was taken in France in February. Left home weighing 128 pounds and now weighs 160 pounds.

then went out on deck for another walk before "chow." Instead of turkey we had steak and spuds and at night beans. So we fared pretty good. This is a bit old now, but I just received the letter in which the inquiry was made.

I suppose you are following the news of the day just now pretty eagerly. I know we all are here.

My perfect record is shattered. I was on pass Sunday and went to the "Y" and sought out the skating rink. I was just performing so magnificently when one fellow crossed the path of a girl, two fell; I ran into them, three gone; then two fellows ran in us and that made five of us in a heap. Later I "spilled" again on my own hooks. But I am getting to like it, (to skate, not to spill), and I will be seeking out Grand Central Palace when I hit New York.

Some of the boys are worried because they can't tour France. Well, the Y. M. C. A. man got off a good one. He said, "You boys don't need to get excited we will see — (he mentioned the big towns of France) and before we get through we will see Berlin too." Talk about noise, I never heard more noise from a body of men in my life. I guess you must have heard the echo.

Well, it is 7:20 and the sun has just come down, the boys are still playing ball and I am sitting outside the hut still writing, coatless and hatless, so you see what weather we are having now. The roads are dry and dusty and many farmers have already planted crops and the trees are leafing out quite well. This will be great in summer.

I again saw Helen Astor. You know her husband is in France. This is several times I have met her while on a trip. I only wish I could meet M. Giraud because I am sure I would get plenty of French lessons then, but I guess I am doomed to disappointment.

I am enclosing two copies of the pictures.

SOLDIER PRAISES HOSPITAL WORK

Soldier Who Had Everything Going Writes of Excellence of Hospital Care in France.

The following letter may forestall the work of the Busy Street Liar in his pro-German campaign:

249 Wall St., Kingston, April 15, '18. Editor Kingston Freeman.

Dear Sir:—One day up at the Chapter House I mentioned what a Kingston boy in France had written me about the hospital and was requested to have it printed to comfort some of the mothers whose boys are "over there." So here it is, if you have place for it.

"I have had quite a time of it this past two months, but now I hope I have had my share. I had pneumonia, scarlet fever, measles; pretty good, don't you think so? But Uncle Sam is taking good care of his boys and no need to worry as everything is the best. American girls, too, for nurses."

Yours respectfully, KATE WALTON.

CARL WRITES FROM FRANCE

Driving an Ambulance in the American Field Service—His Section Complimented for Efficient Service—Glad to Get Mail From Home And Copies of the Freeman.

Herbert Carl has received recently three letters from his son, Sergeant William A. Carl who is driving an ambulance on the American Field Service in France. Some of the most interesting parts of these letters are as follows.

We seem to be trotting all over the way, but we are minus those packs which used to be the big thorn during our Allentown days, at least we are not carrying them on our backs, which is quite unnecessary when there are so many "John Henry's" (Fordes) around. They carry us and our equipment every day and at night we just spread our blankets inside of "John Henry" and we are ready for a little sleep. That has been the program for some time now and facilities for writing have been poor and I have not written as much as I would like to have.

It's pick up again soon with some real work ahead. That is a thousand times better than nothing to do. Not that I want to see the ambulance driven by a big business, but nothing really anyone like having time to throw away.

It seems good to get mail and I have been fortunate in this way. The first letters I received were forwarded from Allentown with a vial of record. The record arrived intact. The last ones received were dated February 10, only a few weeks late, but that does not make much difference. I can hardly wait for that box to arrive. Boxes were good when we were in Allentown, but now—multiply it by about five million.

I am feeling fine, I hope that you are all well. Excerpts from a letter written March 18.

Yesterday was a big day for me, a regular surprise party. Received some cigarettes and some other things, including three copies of The Freeman. Three letters came, one dated January and the others February. It seems mighty good to be receiving mail once more even if it is a month old or so.

Things in general are as first intimated. The ambulance corps is attached to the French army, and with the American Field Service is doing much the same work as before the United States got into this.

In some ways we are fortunate in being with the French army, but this has its disadvantages also. Each ambulance section is alone by itself, buying food from the French commissary and doing business without interference from a thousand or so clerks and others who made life miserable for us before. At present our lieutenant's word settles any question that arises and we are like a small army with him in command.

The section has acquired five Frenchmen, two of them speak a little English and we are getting along nicely.

Just a few moments ago the mail came in, bringing five or six Freeman's and a package of mail. It surely seems good to see an American magazine and paper. I saw one item saying that Mrs. Herbert Carl had received a cablegram saying that I had arrived safely. I have had so many new experiences and seen so many new things since then that it seems ages ago. I believe that from the time we started that we have seen more of France, the most interesting parts at least, than most of the American troops have.

At present we are quartered in a small town about the size of New Paltz, but very different. All stone houses built close together, and no front yards. When I told the sergeant that most of the houses in America were built of wood he asked if they made good homes. Oh boy! Do they!

This part of France must be glorious in the late spring and summer. It's quite nice now, warm spring days and cold nights.

Excerpts from letter written March 22.

At times we have been quite busy,

JESSE SHURTER IN A HOSPITAL

PRIVATE JESSE SHURTER.

This is the first illness Private Shurter has ever had in the 25 years of his life. Private Shurter is in the 13th Co., 2nd Regiment, M. M. S. C., A. E. F., France. He was in the milling business at Samsenville before enlisting and was the Republican candidate for supervisor of the town of Olive last fall. Very few people has the slightest comprehension of the drastic character of the effect of making Kingston a dry town, or of the intolerable interference with personal liberty which that action of necessity involves. The liquor tax law provides that it shall not be lawful for any person to have liquors in any quantity whatever in his possession in any city or town where trafficking in liquors is prohibited. Under this provision of the law the most outrageous invasions of private residences have taken place in various states under the pretense of searching for liquor. Liquor as used in the statute means not only distilled liquors such as brandy, whiskey and gin, but fermented liquors such as champagne, claret and sherry, and malt liquors such as ale and beer.

These searches as a rule are inspired by fanatical men and women, and have resulted in the removal from cities and villages of many prominent tax payers, who have refused to remain residents of places where such practices are permitted, under the guise of law. It behooves the people of Kingston, therefore, seriously to consider whether at this juncture when every effort is being made to make Kingston an attractive and desirable place of business and of residence, the destinies of the town should be placed in the hands of the people who are engaged in this crusade.

This withdrawal, however, was without any military importance for numerous villages on the Flanders front have changed hands time after time since this titanic struggle began last Wednesday morning.

The Germans tried vainly to force their way into Baillieu—a strategic railway center upon the Hazebrouck road—but were flung back leaving the field covered with numberless dead and wounded.

Sunday's fighting centered along the twelve mile front lying from a point north of Merville to the sector of Neuve Eglise, in Belgium. Violent attacks were driven home by the Germans in this zone in their efforts to deploy into Nieppe Wood, which lies immediately west of Baillieu.

The Germans advanced in waves and north of Merville seven assaults were delivered.

At one point the British front was slightly dented, but before the Germans could consolidate their new position the British counter attacked, hurling the enemy back to his old positions.

(Merville is ten miles west of Armentieres and Neuve Eglise about four miles north by northwest of Armentieres.)

The Germans are still far away from their immediate objective in this sector.

There has been another flare-up of fighting east of the British base of Amiens against which the Germans launched their original drive on March 21. Success attended Anglo-French arms in that region, as well as farther north.

The British improved their position in the Hangard sector (about ten miles east of Amiens) while the French carried out a local operation which was officially described as "completely successful."

Prisoners were captured by both the French and British as well as machine guns.

The Allied counter thrusts are gaining momentum on all parts of the front. The British and French troops are showing the "Don't die" spirit asked by Field Marshal Haig and confidence grows now that General Foch, the master strategist of Europe, is directing the movements of the Allied armies.

HYLAND BOYS UNDER FIRE

Quite lively on American Sector—Shrapnel Fell All Around, but Nobody Hurt—The Usual Plea for Letters and News From Home.

The following is a letter received by Mrs. P. Hyland, this city, from her son, James, now at the front in France:

March 17, 1918.

Dear Mother:—I received your two letters of Feb. 18-19; was very glad to hear from you and to know you are all well. We also received the box you sent before Christmas, candy and cigarettes. They were fine. Well, mother, Tom and myself are well. We were up to the front four days. We just came back to our rest camp. The sector we were in was very quiet for some time, the French told us, but since the Americans came there it is quite lively. The first day we went we were unloading a truck on a road back of the front line when the enemy started to shell. They were dropping all around us for a while, but fortunately no one was hurt by the shrapnel so far. The dugout we were in was a good deep one fifty feet under the ground, so the shells did not trouble us very much. Yes, mother, those two fellows you spoke of in your letter are in this company and Dennis Carrigan was in the dugout with me. You can tell his lady friend in Kingston that he is well. The weather is very nice here now. Father Duffy said mass on the hill near our camp this morning. When you write tell me which of the Howards boys were drafted. Dear mother, when you write tell me all the news. I suppose there are a great many changes since I left. Tell all the folks to write. I wrote to all of you a couple of weeks ago. I wonder how Robert likes it in Florida. There are fellows from all over Ulster county around here. Is pop working in the same place yet? Tell him to write me. Do you ever see any of the people from West Hurley? Give my best regards to them all. If you see Roy Avery tell him I would be glad to hear from him, also the Joyce family. Now, tell all the boys I know that I was asking for them. Well, mother, I have not much more to tell you this time only we are well. Tom looks fine; he is getting stout. The army life seems to agree with him. Will close now hoping this letter will find you all in good health. With love to mother, father and sisters, your loving son. Goodbye. JAMES.

then went out on deck for another walk before "chow." Instead of turkey we had steak and spuds and at night beans. So we fared pretty good. This is a bit old now, but I just received the letter in which the inquiry was made.

I suppose you are following the news of the day just now pretty eagerly. I know we all are here.

My perfect record is shattered. I was on pass Sunday and went to "sink." I was just performing so magnificently when one fellow crossed the path of a girl, two fell into them, three gone; then two fellows ran in and that made five of us in a heap. Later I "spilled" again on my own hooks.

Now, all settling to make it, to skate, not to spill, and I will be seeking out Grand Central Palace when I hit New York.

Some of the boys are worried because they can't tour France. Well, the Y. M. C. A. man got off a good one. He said, "You boys don't need to get excited we will see you in the mentioned the big towns of France and before we get through we will see Berlin too." Talk about noise, I never heard more noise from such a body of men in my life. I guess you must have heard the echo.

Well, it is 7:20 and the sun has just gone down, the boys are still playing ball and I am sitting outside the hut still writing, coalless and hatless, so you see what weather we are having now. The roads are dry and dusty and many farmers have already planted crops and the trees are leading out quite well. This will be great in summer.

I again saw Helen Astor. You know her husband is in France. This is several times I have met her while on a trip. I only wish I could meet M. Giraud because I am sure I would get plenty of French lessons, then, but I guess I am doomed to disappointment.

I am enclosing two copies of the pictures.

Judge James A. Betts of this city had the pleasure of a personal call with Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy, who made an address Saturday night at the Hotel Astor, New York city, by the National Democratic Club, in honor of the 175th anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson.

Other Hudson river valley men who attended the affair were Stephen P. Mages, Peter H. Troy, Judge Frank Hensbrough, William Church Osborne, Edward E. Perkins.

Addresses were made by Abram I. Elkins and others. A message from President Wilson was read, with all they keep on with that stuff. Of course this is all great stuff for the western man, and greater stuff for me. Maybe they will show that film in which "Bill" Merritt appears.

In one of your delayed letters you ask what did I do Christmas. That is easy. I walked the decks of the good ship and looked at the nearby shore and cursed to hear the band because I was not allowed to eat my Christmas dinner on French soil. We were given a free range of the ship "Everywhere except the bridge and the crow's nest" as the officer of the deck put it. We played cards, pounded the piano, discussed what was at home, were doing and

Soldier Who Had Everything Going Writes of Excellence of Hospital Care in France.

The following letter may forestall the work of the Busy Street Liar in his pro-German campaign:

249 Wall St., Kingston, April 15, '18.

Editor Kingston Freeman

Dear Sir—One day up at the Chapter House I mentioned what a Kingston boy in France had written me about the hospital and was requested to have it printed to comfort some of the mothers whose boys are "over there." So here it is, if you have place for it.

"I have had quite a time of it this past two months, but now I hope I have had my share. I had pneumonia, scarlet fever, measles, pretty good, don't you think so? But I'm good, Sam is taking good care of his boys and no need to worry as everything is the best. American girls, too, for nurses."

Yours respectfully,

KATE WALTON.

CARL WRITES FROM FRANCE

Driving an Ambulance in the American Field Service—His Section Complimented for Efficient Service—Glad to Get Mail From Home And Copies of the Freeman.

Herbert Carl has received recently three letters from his son, Sergeant William A. Carl who is driving an ambulance on the American Field Service in France. Some of the most interesting parts of these letters are as follows.

We seem to be trotting all over the way, but we are minus those packs which used to be the big thorn during our Allentown days, at least we are not carrying them on our backs, which is quite unnecessary when there are so many "John Henry's" (Ford's) around. They carry us and our equipment every day and at night we just spread our blankets inside of "John Henry" and we are ready for a little sleep. That has been the program for some time now and facilities for writing have been poor and I have not written as much as I would like to have.

It's pick up again soon with some real work ahead. That is a thousand times better than nothing to do. Not that I want to see the ambulance driving a big business, but nothing really gets anyone like having time to throw away.

It seems good to get mail and I have been fortunate in this way. The first letters I received were forwarded from Allentown with a victrola record. The record arrived intact. The last ones received were dated February 19, only a few weeks late, but that does not make much difference. I can hardly wait for that box to arrive. Boxes were good when we were in Allentown, but now—multi-plied by about five million.

I am feeling fine; I hope that you are all well. Excerpts from a letter written March 18:

Yesterday was a big day for me, a regular surprise party. Received some cigarettes and some other things, including three copies of The Freeman. Three letters came, one dated January and the others February. It seems mighty good to be receiving mail once more even if it is a month old or so.

Things in general are as first intended. The ambulance corps is attached to the French army, and with the American Field Service is doing much the same work as before the United States got into this.

In some ways we are fortunate in being with the French army, but this has its disadvantages also. Each ambulance section is alone by itself, buying food from the French commissary and doing business without interference from a thousand or so clerks and others who made life miserable for us before. At present our lieutenant's word settles any question that arises and we are like a small army with him in command.

The section has acquired five Frenchmen, two of them speak a little English and we are getting along nicely.

Just a few moments ago the mail came in, bringing five or six Freeman's and a package of mail. It surely seems good to see an American magazine and paper. I saw one item saying that Mrs. Herbert Carl had received a cablegram saying that I had arrived safely. I have had so many new experiences and seen so many new things since then that it seems ages ago. I believe that from the time we started that we have seen more of France, the most interesting parts at least, than most of the American troops have.

At present we are quartered in a small town about the size of New Paltz, but very different. All stone houses built close together, and no front yards. When I told the sergeant that most of the houses in America were built of wood he asked, "If they made good homes. Oh boy! Do they?"

This part of France must be glorious in the late spring and summer. It's quite nice now, warm spring days and cold nights.

Excerpts from letter written March 22:

At times we have been quite busy, each done a few nights ago.

BONE DRY LAW INVADERS HOMES

Drastic and Inquisitorial Practices Under Prohibition That Would Be an Intolerable Invasion of the Home.

Very few people has the slightest comprehension of the drastic character of the effect of making Kingston a dry town, or of the intolerable interference with personal liberty which that action of necessity involves. The liquor tax law provides that it shall not be lawful for any person to have liquors in any quantity whatever in his possession in any city or town where trafficking in liquors is prohibited. Under this provision of the law the most outrageous invasions of private residences have taken place in various states under the pretense of searching for liquor. Liquor as used in the statute means not only distilled liquors such as brandy, whiskey and gin, but fermented liquors such as champagne, claret and sherry, and malt liquors such as ale and beer.

These searches as a rule are inspired by fanatical men and women, and have resulted in the removal from cities and villages of many prominent tax payers, who have refused to remain residents of places where such practices are permitted under the guise of law. It behooves the people of Kingston, therefore, seriously to consider whether at this juncture when every effort is being made to make Kingston an attractive and desirable place of business and of residence, the destinies of the town should be placed in the hands of the people who are engaged in this crusade.

FARMERETTE TALKS TO GARDEN CLUB

The Ulster Garden Club met on Saturday the past week instead of Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Tappen on Maiden Lane, in order that the club members might hear from one of the Farmerettes of Vassar College.

Mr. Service first addressed the club, regarding the school garden work which will be carried on this year under the supervision of the Garden Club. Only vegetables will be raised by the children in their school gardens, and this year there will be instruction given the boys and girls, more time being devoted to such instruction than to inspection. There will be held in the schools two classes of such teaching, one for the younger and one for the older pupils, covering 36 periods of 45 minutes each and this work completed will be recognized and counted by the regents. If so desired, men and women from Cornell University will address the pupils, also. Another matter which will be brought before the scholars will be that of raising chickens and other food animals.

Mrs. Stuart also spoke to those present regarding her plans and hopes for a community kitchen in this city, where canning, preserving, etc., will be done. Following out the ratio in the country, Mrs. Stuart is of the opinion that there should be three such kitchens in the city.

Mrs. Lawton, president of the Club then showed one of the Bird Lovers' Association posters from Cleveland and the club thought it desirable to set along similar lines here in the hope of saving many of our birds from being shot.

Mrs. Garrett of Vassar College, was next introduced and told graphically, plainly and comprehensively of the farmerette experiment at the college last year and its plans for this coming season.

Last year there were twelve girls who spent eight weeks working in the college gardens and on the college farm, and while they did every part of the farm work they did not neglect the performance of any social duties. Not only did the girls do all of the hand work, but they operated all of the farm machinery. At first they were paid less than men as it was expected that they would not be as good, however, that as soon as they got the knack of the work, they were paid as much as the men. They began by working six hours a day, then gradually increased to eight, and then ten hours, working from 4:30 a. m. to 6:30 p. m. One of the best results of the experiment, which was really too big to be counted a by-product was the fact that there were absolutely no cases of nervous work. They needed plenty of good sleep, but less sleep than when engaged in more nervous mental work. This year motor trucks will be installed for the carrying of the produce, and about eight girls will be employed for the big truck farm, showing pretty conclusively how successful from every viewpoint, the movement has been.

Mrs. Garrett said that with one exception of a girl imbued with the spirit before coming to college, the girls undertook the work from purely patriotic motives, as they were not as much in it as in the

SOLDIERS KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Central Islip, L. I., April 15.—Three soldiers were killed, nineteen were seriously injured and about sixty were slightly hurt early today when five cars of a Long Island train were derailed two miles east of this place.

All of the injured were taken to the Central Islip State hospital. The derangement is believed to have been caused by spreading rails.

The train was carrying soldiers from the National Army on furlough from Camp Upton to New York.

The train, made up of thirteen cars, was running at more than fifty miles an hour when it was derailed. Five cars were telesc

DEMONSTRATION GIVEN FOR DR. CADY

The First Presbyterian Church, Elmendorf street, was filled to capacity Sunday evening with the congregation of the church and other friends of the Rev. Dr. Putnam Cady, who left town this morning for Camp Mills at Mineola, Long Island, where he will have charge of the Y. M. C. A. work. The Sunday school room also was filled with those who were unable to gain admittance to the church auditorium.

Dr. Cady in his sermon referred appreciatively to the fact that while the congregation were unable personally to do all they wished in the way of active work, they were behind him in the work he is about to undertake in the army.

Just before the benediction was pronounced, Mrs. Harry P. Van Wagenen, on behalf of the women of the congregation, presented Dr. Cady with a handsome wrist watch. A fountain pen previously had been presented to him by the men of the church and he also had received a comfort kit, sweater and several other useful gifts.

About three hundred of Dr. Cady's friends gathered at the West Shore station this morning for their leave-taking, and gave him a rousing demonstration of their appreciation of his work and his decision to take up army Y. M. C. A. work at Camp Mills.

EXPECT GOVERNOR WHITMAN TO BE HERE

Pythian Jubilee And Patriotic Meeting at High School Auditorium This Evening to Have Noted Speakers.

The big patriotic and Pythian Jubilee meeting will held at the high school auditorium tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited and all will be welcome.

Governor Charles S. Whitman is expected to motor down to address the meeting. He will probably return directly after the meeting as this is one of his busiest times of the year. Hon. George Addington, county judge of Albany county, whom it is stated will probably be the next supreme court judge in this judicial district, will deliver a patriotic and fraternal address. Grand Chancellor Charles W. Endel of New York city, will also speak.

Mayor Canfield, chairman of the local committee, received a telegram this morning that John J. Brown of Vandalia, Illinois, the supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, and Charles S. Davis of Denver, Colorado, the supreme vice-chancellor, had arrived in New York city and would come to Kingston this evening to participate in the meeting. It is also expected that Fred E. Wheaton, supreme keeper of records and seal, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Thomas J. Carling, past supreme chancellor, would probably come.

Word was also received that Serg. Ruth Farnum, the only woman soldier in this country today, may be present to address the meeting. She is a full-fledged sergeant in the Serbian army and worked and fought for her country and was thrice decorated with high honors. She is now in this country to tell the people just what they have got to meet and the situation over there. It is stated that she is as good a speaker as a fighter, and if there was such a thing as classifying speakers she would be in the officers' rank. Mrs. Frank Brown of Wappingers Falls, who is one of the best singers of the Hudson River Valley, will sing several numbers. She will be accompanied by Harry P. Dodge. The special Golden Jubilee ritualistic service will be given, and an orchestra will be in attendance.

Besides the Pythians mentioned, many others prominent in the order will attend, including Grand Vice-Chancellor Henry W. Hill of Buffalo, Past Grand Chancellor John A. R. Kaaps and Col. Shepard of Troy, Supreme Representative Edward A. Gifford of Albany, and others. There will also be delegations present from various cities between Utica and New York.

This year is the fiftieth anniversary of the institution of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias in this state. A large jubilee celebration is being held each month during the first six months of the year in as many cities. The cities other than Kingston which have been given this honor are New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Utica and Rochester.

The local executive committee consists of Mayor Canfield, Deputy Grand Chancellor Jay W. Rifenbary, S. L. Gray, Walter T. Elston, William Taylor and Charles P. Ashley. The local reception committee consists of Mayor Canfield, Charles P. Ashley, T. J. Rifenbary, J. W. Rifenbary, Capt. B. J. Hornbush, S. L. Gray, John D. Tibbals, William Taylor, Scott W. Van Keuren and Edward F. Stock, and the local finance committee consists of Guy C. Crosby, Scott W. Van Keuren and William F. Styles.

Tonight's meeting will be patriotic and a general fraternal meeting. Any organization desiring to do so may attend in a body. It will be the kind of a meeting that all patriotic citizens should attend.

Senator Stone Dead.

By Telegram to The Freeman.
Washington, April 15.—The capital today mourned the loss of one of its most conspicuous figures, Senator William J. Stone of Missouri chairman of the senate foreign relations committee. His death yesterday afternoon caused a virtual suspension of activities in congress today.

Matchless.

The treasurer of a certain Indianapolis concern desired to smoke while at the office Monday morning. Feeling in his pocket he discovered he had no matches. He went to some of the other employees of the office, who also were without the much-wanted match. He sent the office boy to the drug store for a box. He returned in a few minutes with word that drug stores could sell only drugs on Monday. Suddenly remembering that he could surely get one in the cafeteria downstairs, he was told by one of the maids that the matches were in a locked closet and one of the cooks who had just left had the keys. One of the maids suggested that he light his cigar on one of the gas burners that had not been turned off. Seizing the opportunity as his last chance he returned to his office, where he spent so much time talking about it that the cigar went out.—Indianapolis News.

Saving Coal in Switzerland.

The use of hydro-electric energy for heaters in Switzerland, where coal is imported at a high price, is reported to cost only half as much in some industrial establishments as heating with live steam. Workrooms are kept at comfortable temperature, but for rooms little used a moderate heating is obtained from electric currents taken during "off-peak" periods. In a textile factory where yarn was formerly dried by air passing over steam pipes, the heat is now supplied by 48 electric resistance heaters, behind which wide nets are placed to catch sparks in case of a short circuit.

HIS STRENGTH LAY IN TRUTHFULNESS

Delaware County Newspaper Pays Tribute to "Dunk" Lawrence, Republican Leader, Who Was Sworn For of Hypocrisy.

Delaware county newspapers speak in highest praise of the late J. Duncan Lawrence formerly of Bloomville who died recently at East Schodack and whose funeral and interment took place in this city.

He was born in Delaware county in 1845 and was the son of Jacob W. and Margaret Monroe Lawrence. The father and one son died in the Civil War. Of eight children in the family one only survives, George Lawrence. J. Duncan Lawrence enlisted in the 36th New York Volunteers in the fall of 1861 while still under the age of 18 years and served until the close of the war in 1865. After the war he completed his education at the Andes Collegiate Institute and began business as a clerk in Binghamton. Later he engaged in the live stock business and in 1880 he removed to Bloomville, where he remained until 1911, when he removed to East Schodack.

As previously stated, he had sold his property at East Schodack and was preparing to remove to Kingston when he died. Mr. Lawrence held various public offices. For one term he was county superintendent of the poor of Delaware county; later, supervisor of the town of Kortright and chairman of the Delaware county board of supervisors; sheriff, game protector, parole officer for the state prison at Auburn, and first deputy justice of the peace and county commissioner. For several years he was chairman of the Republican county committee.

In 1915 he married Kate Keator of this city. Mrs. Lawrence and her mother, Miss Mary K. Husted, removed to Kingston last week and will make their home here.

Mr. Lawrence, for many years was an acknowledged power in Republican politics in Delaware county and throughout the state, and the Delaware Express attributes his influence and power to the fact that "his word was as good as the gold in the bank." The Delaware Express says editorially: "It is a day when halting and hesitating, when doubt and distrust are taken for credit, the rugged honesty of 'Dunk' Lawrence would stand like a beacon. Some day, in a more quiet time, there will come back to the upward faith of the fathers, that day of clearer thought, that day of more of the leadership that comes from the courage that for the truth holds braves the hatred of the small, the vicious attacks of the great as well as the sturdy blows of opposition. If it does, it will be the realization of the simple truth that a practiced and American citizen will be the better therefor. The loss of a sworn foe of 'Dunk' the Express sincerely grieves."

How Your Own Row.

If you are indifferent, if you think your work beneath you, then you are a hopeless proposition. Influential friends may indeed answer your call, and do their utmost to keep you retained in the position you longed to leave, but if you have not developed or tried to develop the "talent" you were so sure you possessed, your time is short in the "big" place, and the quicker you awaken to this fact the better it will be for you and all concerned.

SUITS FOR SPRING

Jersey Cloth Suggested as Quite Satisfactory Material.

Any Tailor or the Clever and Careful Home Dressmaker Can Easily Give Satisfaction.

The suit shown in the sketch is made of a wool fabric—jersey cloth is suggested as an excellent selection—embroidered and stitched in a contrasting color and with a smart vest of white satin. This suit could be made by any tailor or a clever and careful home dressmaker, as it is not of the fitted type, and its charm is due to careful attention to tailoring and finish. It is a slipover coat, the vest opening in the center front making this possible, and if made of a good quality of wool jersey cloth no lining is necessary.

Very cheap wool jersey cloth has the unfortunate tendency to stretch in all directions, so that unless a coat of it is lined it usually sags very quickly. It is not difficult to see that the money saved on the material, when a cheap grade is selected, is overbalanced by the lining required, and never under any circumstances will the suit be as smart as though a good, firmly knitted fabric had been selected.

High-grade garments and fewer of them, if necessary, is a good general rule for any woman. The skirt of the suit shown in the sketch is narrow. A width of one and a half to one and three-quarters yards is a safe general rule for skirts.

Modish and Unusual Suit for Spring.

this season. It may be stitched at the edge to match the coat. The skirt fastens at the side front, and is plain front and back with a trifling fullness let in at either side.

This design might be developed in silk jersey, or it might be made up in dark-colored satin embroidered in wool thread and with white vest of satin or faille silk.

Even jacket suits are being strongly featured, but they are not becoming to all figures, and as with all novelties when first introduced, or when revived after several seasons of rest, there is great danger of the style being overdone.

TEA TABLE, SOCIETY'S ALTAR

Beverage Sustains and Cheers as Nothing Else Does—Quieting Nerves and Changing Thoughts.

The tea table has been called the altar of society and time the daily sacrifice, says Churchill Ripley in the Mother's Magazine. There is a great deal to be said in favor of this use of time, and the women of America would do well to universally observe the tea hour as a time of relaxation. Throughout the country there might be established the custom of completing the heavier duties of the day at four o'clock, and attending after that to lighter duties that would result in the betterment of all. A cupful of tea sustains and cheers as nothing else does; moreover, it is quieting to the nerves to change the thoughts and occupations if only a few moments.

A group of women determined to make better use of time could easily devote the late afternoon hours to their Red Cross work, separating the time set apart for that service from the earlier hours of the day, and over the tea-cups gain relaxation that would be of assistance in their patriotic work. Many thousands of our women observe the tea hour, but many more thousands need to be emancipated from duties to which they are accustomed to give all the hours of every day in the year.

Much that would otherwise never suggest itself to the housewife and mother may become of intense interest and be of definite importance in the home if the tea table and the tea hour be established in our midst.

YOUR VOTE TOMORROW--- MAKE IT YES, FOR KINGSTON!

WHY?

What would you say if the Allies hoped to win a battle or a whole campaign by shooting off one gun, or using but one battleship? Think!

It is the united efforts of millions of guns and thousands of ships that are holding the line on the battle front of Freedom.

What would you say if only Kingston's boys were conscripted to fight the enemy on the western front? Would they win and settle the question decisively for the rest of the country, or the world? Think.

Isn't the united efforts of ten million other young men in other cities who are adding their force to those of Kingston and to the other millions of our Allies who are successfully holding the line. Think.

What do you say about conscripting every citizen of Kingston--every visitor to Kingston and forcing them to not drink in Kingston?

Will that stop them from going to Saugerties, Rosendale, Rhinebeck, Port Ewen or Poughkeepsie? and spending their money there?--for food and clothing as well?

Don't you think that if liquor were to be prohibited in Kingston it should be done at a time when it will be also prohibited in Saugerties, Rosendale, Rhinebeck, Port Ewen, and Poughkeepsie?

Think, right on down the line, and you will see that if you conscript only Kingston against the liquor question, you are fighting what should and ultimately will be a state and national problem with only the single gun of Kingston. Do you expect to win a battle that way? THINK!

Do you think Kingston locally can settle a question that requires the co-operation of the whole state and nation? Think!

Local Option in one town does not prohibit it in a neighboring town. If a man goes to a town and buys a drink he is going to spend money there also for food and clothing. Remember that! Furthermore, he will buy more than he wants because of the distance he has had to go for it. Remember that also!

Local Option for Kingston does not settle the liquor question for the state or nation or even for Kingston, but Local Option does make it

MIGHTY UNFAIR FOR KINGSTON

WE are against Local Option because it is unfair to Kingston.

YOU are against Local Option because it is unfair to Kingston.

WE are against Local Option because we believe it a matter of state and national legislation and not a question to be decided locally at a time when surrounding towns are running wide open to the detriment of the welfare of Kingston.

YOU are against Local Option because what you can't get in Kingston you CAN GET a few miles away, and if you are going to be "prohibited" it is only fair that your neighbor be "prohibited" too. This can be accomplished only through state referendum and not through local politics.

Think! Isn't that so?

Vote "Yes" On All Questions Tomorrow!

(Signed)

BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN WHO BELIEVE IN FAIRNESS TO KINGSTON

Consider Well Before You Vote

On April 16, under the Local Option Law, the people of Kingston will be called upon, at a special election, to answer four questions that will be submitted to them with regard to the sale of liquors in Kingston.

Shall our American Constitution—up to now a plan of government and a guarantee of personal rights—be converted into a prohibition of personal liberties?

If a majority of the voters answer these questions in the negative, the City of Kingston will lose annually more than $43,000. which it will otherwise receive from the State in revenue from the liquor tax to be applied by the City of Kingston to the relief pro-rata of every one of its taxpayers in the payment of his taxes.

Shall fewer than 5,000 men be permitted to control the liberties of 100,000,000, without those 100,000,000 having a single word to say?

This money had been paid to Kingston heretofore by those who choose to drink.

May not the people, and the whole people, have a chance to inform themselves about this thing, to think about it, and then to vote on it?

But if Kingston votes against the sale of liquor, that amount of money, instead of relieving the general rent-payer and tax-payer, must be, in the future and in ever-increasing amount provided by him.

Yes, wheat is needed for the war. But must everybody grow wheat when his soil and his climate won't do it, but would grow hops and grapes?

In answering the four questions that will be submitted to the voter on April 16, therefore, if he writes "Yes," it will mean that liquor may continue to be sold, and the rent-payer and tax-payer may continue to be relieved in their obligations to the State by what the State turns over to them from the liquor tax.

36 Legislatures, fewer than 5,000 men, can change the American Constitution and make it forbid our personal liberties.

If he writes "No," it will mean that they, the general tax-payers, lose this $43,000.; and a larger sum every year and, with their taxes ever increasing, must make up the deficiency.

It might be all right for the force of fewer than 5,000 men to give to us a permanent guarantee of rights and liberties and freedom—

But should it be permitted to fewer than 5,000 men to deny a RIGHT to 100,000,000 of other men—even a right that some of us might abuse—without our having a chance to say anything about it?

This economic question, therefore, enters into the sense of the answers that every voter must make and at a time when the drain upon his income is a strain upon his labor that he never before has known.

When he writes on the ballot "Yes" or "No," therefore, he will write his wish to take upon his shoulders, or not to do so, that greater burden, whatever it may come to be, than the present law, National, State, county and municipal, imposes.

KINGSTON, N. Y., APRIL 15, 1918.

Advocates of changes in our system of voting apparently never foresaw complications which might arise by doubling the number of voters and it was not until the recent registration in cities where special elections would be held revealed the number of new registrants that a full realization dawned on anybody that new machinery for conducting the election would be necessary or an additional day provided for voting, although it was known since the day after election last November that universal suffrage doubled, or more than doubled, the number of voters. After the heavy registration in cities where local option elections were scheduled to take place tomorrow, legislation was hastily enacted at Albany and approved by Governor Whitman, extending the time of voting at the local option elections this year to two days. Consequently, the polling places in this city will be open both on Tuesday and Wednesday. Another change in the law will also keep the polling places open longer than usual; they will open each morning on the two days at 6 a. m. but will not close until 8 p. m. Two days' voting is most unusual and has not occurred in New York State in many years. Except to meet the present emergency it is not a good plan; a decision should be made in one day and enough polling places provided to allow a decision on questions submitted or in the selection of public officials in one day. The change in the election law giving over Tuesday and Wednesday to voting on local option was, of course, an emergency measure. Whether Kingston votes "wet" or "dry," nobody will be able to complain of insufficient time in which to vote.

All patriotic Americans will commend the action of Secretary McAdoo in withdrawing from consideration of the House of Representatives estimates of more than four million dollars for public buildings in various parts of the country whose construction at this time is deemed not only unnecessary but detrimental to the public interest. Closing the pork barrel is an absolute necessity now and most public buildings constructed by the Government can be considered as nothing less than excuses for tapping that barrel. Everywhere the United States Government for many years has spent huge sums in erecting postoffice buildings, whose expensive construction could not be justified except on the ground that the community and Congressmen of that district had been faithful supporters of the administration then in power and custom had decreed that political faithfulness should be rewarded in that manner at the public expense. Several years ago there were scandalous disclosures regarding the size of appropriations made for postoffices in villages not much bigger than the smallest of the incorporated villages in Ulster county. The pork trust extracted from the Government barrel at that time was apportioned largely among Southern Congressmen. The habit of tapping the pork barrel had become so ingrained in many Congressmen and they had become so imbued with the idea that political advantage must be sought before appropriation bills were passed that preparedness measures were delayed and the habit was in part responsible for the delay in getting our machinery in motion after we entered the war. Sentimental politics should make Ulster sympathetic with Walden, Orange county, for which an appropriation of $12,500 is withdrawn by Secretary McAdoo, but in view of the year, Walden should be congratulated on being able to do without that sum.

Draft quotas for local exemption divisions based on the number of registrants in Class 1, as embodied in the bill which passed the House of Representatives on Saturday, after having passed the Senate six weeks before is the fairest plan which has been devised for raising an army with the least disturbance of industrial and domestic conditions. The first draft was conducted on the population basis of States and subdivisions, but inasmuch as strict compliance with this rule would have worked hardship on small cities and rural communities on account of the number of men of draft age who had moved to the manufacturing centers, a settlement was reached by the census assuming that population everywhere bore the same ratio to registration. This resulted in a larger number of men being called from the manufacturing centers to which they had flocked than would have been possible under a strict basis of actual population. The second draft will be carried out on the basis of the number of men in Class 1, which is the preferred class for fighting purposes. Class 1 is preferred for fighting because its membership is made up of unmarried men who have no dependents, and under the new draft quota bill the President is authorized to exhaust entirely Class 1 before taking men from Class 2, and he may call upon draft subdivisions for a certain percentage of the number of men in Class 1 regardless of whether that community has furnished its quota under the old arrangement. An amendment to the Senate bill provides that each community shall be credited with its volunteers in the military and naval service. The practical equality of the new plan is exhibited in its working out in Ulster county, where Divisions No. 2 and 3, which are farming communities, have been shown to have fewer Class 1 men than the city division which can more readily spare them.

Diogenes' Lantern Too Dim.

A young man carrying a small leather covered box saw in one of the cross streets of Upper New York a window placard bearing the name of John J. Diogenes. He touched the bell button and presented to the flunky who opened the door his card: "Diogenes Duxenberry Smith." The flunky bowed low and said: "Sasparikolokaeote." Presently the portieres at the rear of the hall parted and a man entered. "Have I the honor of addressing Mr. J. J. Diogenes, descendant of the Athenian philosopher?" the caller asked.

Mr. Diogenes bowed assent. "Well," said Mr. Smith, "I am taking orders for an electric lantern, guaranteed to be of from 100 to 115 candle power. It will burn for about 40 hours without recharging the battery, and it can be recharged for the small sum of—"

"My dear man," broke in Mr. Diogenes, as greenish blue flashes glimmered through the openings of the portieres, "we no longer use any sort of lantern in looking for an honest man. I am just now X-raying a candidate for a job as bank cashier."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Real Trial.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown decided to have a spin in their new motor car. They had proceeded just three miles when the car broke down and refused to restart. Mr. Brown got out to make a general inspection of the working parts, which, needless to say, he knew nothing about. He had been underneath the car for some considerable time and had done little to warranting except using bad language, when his wife intervened.

"Now, John," she said, "I won't have you using such language. Have patience, please." "John," he replied, "I had his nose fast in a cog-wheel."—Exchange.

Could Prove His Sanity.

In a certain street not far from Broadway dwells a clerk who is known as Daft Pat, owing to his being confined in a lunatic asylum for several years. Shortly after his release he was having an argument with some of his fellow clerks when one of them said:

"Look here Pat, you had better hold your tongue. You have only just come out of an asylum, and we all know you're daft." "Ha!" exclaimed Pat, with ready wit. "Why, I'm the only man amongst us that has a certificate for being sane."—Exchange.

Unnecessary Fears.

Of course the cloning couple's reluctance of a cat had no chance against the old man's high-powered conductor. He soon came up with them.

"Do not take her back," pleaded the young man with tears in his eyes. "Take her back!" echoed the stern parent. "Why, I have come to bring her knitting outfit and chewing gum, so she would never have an excuse to come back."—Boston Transcript.

BERRY SHRUB

By FRANCES LINSKY.

It was a typical summer hotel veranda. At least so thought a perspiring and very much disgusted young man who looked up at it from the bottom of the somewhat steep and very dusty hill.

"An Adamless Eden, I'll warrant," he muttered.

Brown as a young Indian from weeks of outdoor camp life, and covered with dust and perspiration, certainly no one would have recognized in this very bedraggled young man Max Harding, whose aristocratic mother was a guest at the hotel on the hill.

Scowling fiercely, he dragged his heavy suitcase up the path, only to be met at the veranda steps by a pompous-looking individual who effectually barred his further progress.

"Can't come up the front way, fellow," said the pompous one.

"What the devil—" and when as the full significance of the servant's remark struck him, Max Harding burst into a laugh.

"Maybe I can sneak in through the kitchen and get washed up before I greet the master," he thought. "If she ever catches me looking like this—Hello, whew—ew—ew," and he whistled softly, for a remarkably pretty girl sat directly in front of the kitchen door, shelling peas—thus once more blocking his progress.

"Have you a moment to spare," he asked, removing his hat, and speaking in his most engaging manner.

"I am sorry, but I haven't," said the young woman, very promptly, scarcely glancing up from her work.

"Oh, ho," thought he, "not much enthusiasm here. May I show you some of my wares?" with an expressive glance in the direction of the suitcase.

"You may not," said the young woman, just as promptly as before.

"Well, do you mind if I sit down on the lawn a minute?" he hazarded for his third venture.

"I do not," again responded the "fair lady of the peas," taking him in with one all-appraising glance.

So Max sat down on the little plot of grass in front of the house, and leaned his head back against the building, and closed his eyes.

"Poor fellow," thought the girl, her sympathy aroused at last, "he must be pretty tired. I'm afraid I was rather sharp with him. Well, he looks dark enough for one of those Syrian or Armenian peddlers, but he certainly doesn't talk like one. I'll just run in and get him a glass of raspberry shrub. It'll cool him off before he goes."

She was back in a moment with a glass of delicious looking liquid, and, tapping the young man on the shoulder, she offered it to him.

"Here, drink this," she said. "I'm sorry I couldn't stop to look at your wares. Have you made many sales today?"

"No, not one," answered Max, quite truthfully, and he swallowed the refreshing drink with genuine appreciation. Then, with many thanks, he bent a hasty retreat around to the front of the house once more.

This time his mother was seated on the veranda, and she greeted him effusively, but he managed to make her understand that a bath and some clean linen were the two most essential things in his life at that particular moment, and so he escaped to his room.

He descended about an hour later, looking very different in his white flannels, and his mother's pride shone in her eyes as she greeted him.

"And, Max," she said, "there's the loveliest girl here. I want you to meet her. Her name is Anna Cabot."

"Now, mother," he remonstrated.

"But, Max, dear, this one is different! But wait—she's promised to sit at our table tonight, and you'll see for yourself."

"Well, no sign of your divinity yet, mother," said Max, some minutes later, when they had started their dinner; perhaps—hopelessly—"she's changed her mind."

"No, here she comes," said Mrs. Harding, and straight to their table came the lady of his afternoon's adventure.

Lifting her eyes to acknowledge the introduction, the color flooded into the girl's face, and her eyes asked innumerable questions as she recognized him.

"Do you know that Katie the cook left this afternoon?" asked the girl of Mrs. Harding some moments later, when she was herself again.

"Good gracious," gasped that lady. "Who took her place?"

"I did," said the girl, quietly, measuring glances with the young man opposite her.

"Why, my dear, aren't you clever?" exclaimed his mother, looking at her son with an "I-told-you-so" expression.

Just then the waitress entered the dining room with liquid refreshments clinking in a silver pitcher.

"By-the-way, Miss Cabot," said Max. "I understand that you are 'up' in such matters—what drink would you recommend as the most cooling and refreshing for these hot days, as well as most economical?"

"Why," said the girl, daintily raising her glass as he raised his, "why—raspberry shrub."

And over their glasses their eyes met in a look of complete understanding.

Use Oil on Fountain Pen.

An application of heavy oil to the joints of a fountain pen will effectively overcome the oozing out of ink at these places. The types of fountain pens, having points which disappear by turning a section of the barrel, sometimes leak because of wear. To remedy this, soak the pen in warm water, and permit it to dry, particularly inside. Then apply oil on the spindle that is revealed. Heavy cylinder oil is best for the purpose. The lubricant should be worked through the bearing from end to end. The pen is then refilled, and excess oil wiped off.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Made of Service by Mankind.

The skin of the wolf-fish, a ferocious little creature that often attacks persons who venture in wading along the rocky seashore of New England, biting them severely, is now being used for cardcases and shopping bags. The green leather, called "shagreen," remarkable for its wearing quality and imperviousness to water (on which latter account it is extensively employed for instrument cases), is made from the hide of the "angel shark" of the Mediterranean. In Tartary dried and oiled fish skins serve as a substitute for glass in windows, being sufficiently translucent for the purpose.

BISHOP DEDICATES MEMORIAL LIGHTS

Every available seat was occupied at St. John's Episcopal Church on Sunday evening when the Rev. Charles S. Burch, Suffragan Bishop of New York, confirmed a class of sixteen young people and later dedicated the beautiful and artistic lights just installed in the church. These lights which are formed like an inverted bell, hang from each cross piece of the ceiling of the church, diffusing a soft and very pleasant light which reaches the farthestmost corners of the church, and having been especially designed are both artistic and appropriate to the architectural scheme of the edifice. They were dedicated by the bishop as a memorial to the Green family, "all of whom now rest in Paradise," and were given by the late Mrs. Jessie Green Preston.

The beauty of the church was further enhanced by the altar decorations of Easter lilies. The musical part of the service, under the direction of Organist Harry P. Dodge, was especially fine.

Bishop Burch in addressing the congregation in a class just confirmed took for his text, I John III: 2, "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."

In the beginning the writer of the Epistle positively rejoiced in the honor of this divine sonship, then with some doubt and hesitancy he questioned what should follow, but triumphantly noted that the son shall be like the father in the perfection of time and character.

The Bishop showed the joys, the duties and the responsibilities of "The sonship of God" which called for the most absolute obedience, even such as we demand of every soldier in our armies and navies today. It also required discipline, self-discipline, and the Bishop was most emphatic in his expression of the opinion that such training in self-discipline, self-control was one of the greatest needs today of the American people, who are pleasure loving, extravagant and wasteful to a degree. He called attention to the recent address given by Archbishop York of England, before the great audience in Carnegie Hall, wherein, without bitterness he so poignantly depicted, the difference between the people of London today and of New York. The bishop hoped that out of this terrible war, we as a people might be saved from our materialism, extravagance and selfishness and raised to a higher spiritual level than we have ever experienced. Penitence was another quality of divine sonship, and a most unpopular one said Bishop Burch and was followed by repentance. Then there must be charity that great charity so comprehensive, pictured by St. Paul so impressively. In fact this charity or love was shown to be the foundation of the divine sonship, which makes every son a member of God's family. A few impressive words were then addressed to the members of the confirmation class, the Bishop giving them as their life motto, "I will continue." To continue to fulfill the many beautiful and difficult obligations of divine sonship until one's life's end, as a "Child of God," the Bishop counted to be the very best legacy that any man or woman could leave to the world.

GOOD IN OLD DAYS

Modern Life by No Means Has Monopoly of Virtues.

And Prominent Among the Things It Lacks Is That "Neighborliness" That Meant So Much in the Bygone Years.

Neighborliness is a product of rural localities that deserves transplantation to cities, and sedulous nurture there that it may continue to grow. "Who, then, is my neighbor?" the man "in the city pent" asks himself, as he regards a row of similar house fronts and reflects on the fact that he has only a nodding acquaintance at best with the majority of the inmates.

Independence is fostered by the conditions of living in the country. Ordinarily we do not need the help of the next house, near or far. But let fire come, or a destructive storm, or a predatory visitor, or a serious illness, and the neighbor may be as welcome as angels.

City life is often a battle of the strong, because there are crowds and there are many mouths to feed and many shuffling feet to be shod. If we let ourselves think of it, the vast multitude of identities striving to establish themselves is almost terrifying. Where did so many people come from? Where are they going? How are they to find a lodging for the night? Each of the moving swarm is the center of a circle of friends. The humblest, unless deeply unfortunate, has ties that bind him to earth and make life in a degree—dear to him.

Out of the pagan wilderness to the urban lights and roarings comes bucolic youth. What will the city do to that unsophisticated? Or in what way will its rugged, innocent power in time come to prevail upon the city?

Your shrewdest, hardest captain of business closes his eyes at his desk and is taken back to murmurous water-brooks and bees, to the aroma of hay, of kine, of burning leaves, to the sound of the whetted scythe or the sight of baked apples in the window of the woodshed.

Why can't their brown flannels or bakers' aprons or conceit apple sauce or cook oatmeal as they did down on the farm?

The table was always big enough for the unexpected guest. An egg or a quart of milk was no such great event as it is in the city. There used

New York State Hotel Association

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

334 Fifth Avenue, at 33d Street,
New York City.

April 11th, 1918.

To the Voters of Kingston:

As an officer of the New York State Hotel Association for the past twenty-five years I have been familiar with hotel conditions in Kingston, and know that its hotels are a credit to your city. There is no better advertisement for a growing, progressive city than good hotels, and those of Kingston are as good as any in the State.

Of all the patrons of your hotels a large majority are accustomed to the use of beer, wine or other refreshments with their meals. The large class of automobile tourists who visit your city because of the good reputation of your hotels, are moderate, temperate users of these beverages, and if they could not procure them would go elsewhere. There are numerous other license towns and cities in your vicinity, and the motor traffic would go to these places instead of to Kingston. Commercial travelers and other business men would make it a point not to stay in your city when they could go to a nearby city.

You are about to vote on the license question. I am writing this with a sense of the obligation that the great hotel industry of the state owes to such well-managed, orderly and law-abiding hotels as those of your city. I believe that by voting no-license you will not only injure these hotels but also other business interests that will be affected by diverting from Kingston many persons who now visit it. It is certain that with reduced patronage and increased charges for food and lodging, that no-license will make necessary, it will be impossible for your hotels to maintain their high standards and that some of them, at least, will not be able to remain in the business. In view of these facts I trust that you will decide to vote to license your hotels, so that they may continue to serve your people and the traveling public as well as in the past.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. A. FARNHAM, President

New York State Hotel Association.

"Black Stones."

Philadelphia long looked with suspicion on the "black stones," the first of which came to the city in 1780 or 1787. Some of this importation from Wilkes-barre was distributed among the shipwrights and smiths, but most of it was taken to the cellar of Robert Morris' partner, John Nicholson. When he was thrown into prison for debt, those who seized the valuables in his house threw the coal out on Franklin square, regarding it as rubbish. One historian says that an early miner issued handbills printed in both German and English, explaining the method of burning the coal. "They went also to blacksmiths' shops, exhibited certificates from smiths who had successfully used the new fuel, and sometimes bribed the journeymen to make the experiment fairly. All this availed very little." It was not until 1819 that a newspaper advertised the fuel, though within six years of that time it had won its way to the coal bins of the citizens of Philadelphia.—John T. Faris.

And More Honest.

A gracious refusal is better than an ungracious gift.

to be time, too, to settle the affairs of the borough and the nation, to discuss Horace Greeley, and to wind the clock, between supper and early bedtime.

We have filtration, and the vacuum cleaner, and the servant question, and all the other city advantages. But it was something to know the neighbors, and somehow or other "the men that were boys when I was a boy" mean something in a lifetime that the brisk, ambitious, clean-shaven, up-pushing generation does not convey. It would do these take-it-or-leave-it fellows good to study the large, leisurely, tranquillizing ways of their forebears in the days when "civilization" was not on a tear from the cheap lunch to the bargain counter, and home was not a way station betwixt the joy ride and the moving pictures.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

To Keep Pet Fish Healthy.

Remember never to subject the fish in your aquarium to an abrupt change of temperature in their water. When the water becomes stagnant, replace it partially with fresh, or when it is desired to clean the aquarium, siphon out the debris that has collected along the bottom with a small rubber hose and add fresh water. Rain or well water is better than filtered water. When the fish come to the top, it is a sign that they need oxygen, and fresh water should at once be given them. Always have water plants in the aquarium. Root these firmly in the pebbles, or, preferably, in small pots filled with sand. Snails and tadpoles also help keep the aquarium in condition, as they feed upon the debris. The best species of watergrass is the common Washington grass of our ponds and lakes.

Effect of Gold Discoveries.

The value of gold diminishes and general prices rise on each important discovery of gold, which is likely to increase the quantity of money in circulation. The greatest revolution in prices occurred after the discovery of America. This started about 1320 and happened again in 1554, when Mexican and Peruvian currency invaded Europe. In ancient times, Pliny and Plutarch so state, the value of land increased fully two-thirds because of the influx of gold brought back by Paolo Emilio following the conquest of Macedonia.

And Other Prominent Speakers
COME ONE COME ALL

EXPECT GOVERNOR WHITMAN TO BE HERE

Pythian Jubilee And Patriotic Meeting at High School Auditorium This Evening to Have Noted Speakers.

The big patriotic and Pythian Jubilee meeting will held at the high school auditorium tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The public is invited and all will be welcome.

Governor Charles S. Whitman is expected to motor down to address the meeting. He will probably return directly after the meeting as this is one of his busiest times of the year. Hon. George Addington, county judge of Albany county, whom it is stated will probably be the next supreme court judge in this judicial district, will deliver a patriotic and fraternal address. Grand Chancellor Charles W. Endel of New York city, will also speak.

Mayor Canfield, chairman of the local committee, received a telegram this morning that John J. Brown of Vandalla, Illinois, the supreme chancellor of the Knights of Pythias, and Charles S. Davis of Denver, Colorado, the supreme vice-chancellor, had arrived in New York city and would come to Kingston this evening to participate in the meeting. It is also expected that Fred E. Wheaton, supreme keeper of records and seal of Minneapolis, Minnesota, and Thomas J. Carling, past supreme chancellor, would probably come.

Word was also received that Serg. Ruth Farum, the only woman soldier in this country today, may be present to address the meeting. She is a full-fledged sergeant in the Serbian army and worked and fought for her country and was thrice decorated with high honors. She is now in this country to tell the people just what they have got to meet and the situation over there. It is stated that she is as good a speaker as a fighter, and if there was such a thing as classifying speakers she would be in the officers rank. Mrs. Frank Brown of Wappingers Falls, who is one of the best singers of the Hudson River Valley, will sing several numbers. She will be accompanied by Harry P. Dodge. The special Golden Jubilee ritualistic service will be given, and an orchestra will be in attendance.

Besides the Pythians mentioned, many others prominent in the order will attend, including Grand Vice-Chancellor Henry W. Hill of Buffalo, Past Grand Chancellor John A. R. Kaaps and Col. Shepard of Troy, Supreme Representative Edward A. Gifford of Albany, and others. There will also be delegations present from various cities between Utica and New York.

This year is the fiftieth anniversary of the institution of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias in this state. A large jubilee celebration is being held each month during the first six months of the year in as many cities. The cities other than Kingston which have been given this honor are New York, Brooklyn, Buffalo, Utica and Rochester.

The local executive committee consists of Mayor Canfield, Deputy Grand Chancellor Jay W. Rittenbary, Walter P. Elston, William W. Taylor and Charles P. Ashley. The local reception committee consists of Mayor Canfield, Charles P. Ashley, T. J. Rittenbary, J. W. Rittenbary, Capt. B. J. Hornbeck, S. L. Gray, John D. Tibbals, William W. Taylor, Scott W. Van Keuren and Edward F. Stock, and the local finance committee consists of Guy C. Crosby, Scott W. Van Keuren and William P. Styles.

Tonight's meeting will be patriotic and a general fraternal meeting. Any organization desiring to do so may attend in a body. It will be the kind of a meeting that all patriotic citizens should attend.

SOCIETY NOTES.

The Primrose Club of this city will hold another one of their popular dances at their club rooms on Railroad avenue Monday evening, April 15. A large number of tickets have been sold and a large crowd is certain to be in attendance. The rooms have been handsomely decorated for the occasion and the club members are sparing no pains to make the event a social success for those who will be present. Palen's orchestra of this city will furnish the music for dancing. Dancing will start promptly at 8 o'clock and continue until a late hour.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF WAR PROGRESS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, April 15.—"The turning point in the west is being reached. The Germans have scored a distinct advantage which it would be very unwise to endeavor to belittle." With these solemn words of warning the war department weekly review of today sums up the war situation. The Hun is within forty miles of Calais, the statement continues, and as the lines of communication to Channel ports radiate vertically from this battle front the German advance is greatly facilitated.

In spite of this, however, the war department brings attention to the fact that the principal aims of the enemy have not been attained.

"We must bear in mind that the enemy is waging a battle of annihilation to achieve victory," the statement says. "He is fighting today with the sole aim of annihilating the British armies. Thus, terrain conquered counts for little. If the enemy can muster the driving power, he will in all probability continue his assaults hoping that by an enveloping attack on an oblique front, to use the classic Prussian definition, he may score a complete annihilating victory."

"The turning point in the west is being reached. The Germans have scored a distinct advantage which it would be very unwise to endeavor to belittle. Yet they have failed in their great purpose to achieve victory in the field and will soon be forced to resume their old tactics, seeking to gain limited objectives, striking first at one point then at another in order to render the allied positions untenable and give themselves greater security."

"There has been less activity along the southern flank of the Picardy salient. Here the line taken over by the French is now fully consolidated. After the bloody battles which have been raging in the area between Montdidier and Novon, the enemy, fearing a counter attack along this flank of their new deeply curved salient, struck repeated blows to give themselves elbow room south of the Oise."

"The Germans, by stubborn and costly driven thrusts, were able to force the French out of the triangular area formed by the Oise, the Ailette and the old line stretching from LaFere to Anizy-le-Chateau."

"On an approximate twelve-mile front the enemy advanced to a depth ranging from three to six miles. The French contesting every foot of ground, were able to check the enemy's onslaughts and carry out their carefully arranged plans for the occupation of the line which they now hold south of Ailette."

"Quite a Change in Weather. The weather man pleased everybody when he paroled out the weather for Sunday and today, especially after the wind, rain and snow storms of last week. Open cars were running today again on the trolley road."

"On the first day of the assault, the enemy was able to penetrate to a depth of 2 1/4 to 4 miles on a front of 11 miles. On the second day the attack was extended to 20 miles, while the impetus of the offensive was considerably slowed down and only able to reach a maximum additional depth of 2 1/4 miles. The front of attack has since been further extended and the British have been forced to abandon positions to the north and south of the Lys and west of the Lave.

"The enemy has made headway along the LaBassee Canal to within the immediate vicinity of Bethune, while the other points northwest of the city of considerable tactical importance have fallen into the hands of the enemy."

"During the four days fighting the enemy has gained a considerable local success in this area."

Thus terrain conquered counts for little. GRAND OFFICERS AT CLINTON CHAPTER

Despite the storm on Friday evening, Masonic Hall on Wall street was crowded to its capacity when R. W. Bertie C. Ford, District Deputy Grand Master, and R. W. Charles Vedder, Assistant Grand Lecturer of the Eleventh District, State of New York, made their official visit to Clinton Chapter, No. 445. The rooms were beautifully decorated for the occasion, with American flags and flowers in abundance.

The officers of the chapter in their new robes presented a flag ceremony which was very effective and beautiful. R. W. Grace V. Merritt, Acting Grand Conduetress, and R. W. S. D. Scudder, Acting Grand Marshal, introduced the grand officers, who were received by the worthy matron, Miss Minnie E. Risley, who extended a very hearty and felicitous welcome to the distinguished guests.

After the conferring of the Star Degrees on five candidates, a very pleasing musical program was rendered, consisting of solos by Mrs. Morris Mrs. C. E. Wonderly and Harry Clearwater and all were forced to respond to encores.

Many helpful and inspiring thoughts were brought out in the addresses of Mrs. Ford, D. D. G. M., and Charles Vedder, A. G. L., who spoke of the service demanded of members of the order in this national crisis.

The worthy patron presented Mrs. Ford with a beautiful cracker and cheese dish and the worthy patron presented Mr. Vedder with a fountain pen as a token of the high esteem in which they are held by Clinton Chapter.

A banquet was served after the meeting. Guests were present from the various chapters in the district.

Young Israelites Won.

On Sunday afternoon the Young Israelites defeated the White Eagles by the score of 6 to 4. The White Eagle pitcher was knocked very hard and kept the Eagle fielders chasing the ball. The Eagles were kept in check. The White Eagles became very much peeved in the ninth and so the game had to go to twelve innings with the result above mentioned.

Miss Demarest to Speak.

The Young Women's Mission Guild of the Fair Street Reformed Church will hold a regular meeting in the Sunday room Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at which time Miss Demarest will speak of her work among the Japanese. All the young women of the church are urged to be present.

World's Chief Battlefields.

POLICE BREAK UP A CRAP GAME

Shortly before midnight Saturday night Sergeant Hanley and Officers Kuehn, Soper, Snyder and Connelly, raided the pool room conducted by Peter Augustine at No. 18 Mill street, and placed Augustine under arrest and took the names and addresses of a dozen young fellows found in the place. The police secured money, dice and a table covered with a piece of cloth. Augustine was released under a bail bond furnished by N. D. J. Murphy until this morning when he was arraigned before Judge Schirck and a hearing in the matter was adjourned until Thursday morning at 10 o'clock. It is said by the police that they found a crap game in full swing when they made the raid.

Colors Give Protection.

In the tropics and jungle regions are found the most astonishing examples of imitation and mimicry. He is a profuse specialization of color and pattern to harmonize and fuse with the usual environment, in order to render the bearer indistinguishable, or to simulate with fidelity some particular object. The spotted skin of the leopard, dull orange and black, is nature's way of protecting this animal from the eyes of the hunter, for the colorations are in harmony with the mottled lights and shades of the sun-flecked jungles. The tiger, giraffe, zebra and other Africa wild beasts are covered with stripes representing the barred lights of savanna land.

The Trouble.

"Why did your friend claim immunity for prostration from war service, when all he has been doing is to shuck oysters?"

"That's right. You see, he didn't dream there would be so much work in that job, and so he's suffering from shell shock."

Cause for Worry.

Patience—I don't know what I shall do for furs next summer.

Patience—What's the cause for worry?

"Why, it's been so cold this winter they'll be all worn out by summer."

COTTON BREAKS $8 ON THE BALE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, April 15.—Cotton futures broke 154 points, or nearly $8 on the bale on the Cotton Exchange today on heavy selling orders from abroad, following a break in the Liverpool market.

July contracts sold at $29.90, off 56 from Saturday's close, and 460 points, approximately $23 a bale, below the high mark of the season, which was made on April 4.

Following the heavy breaks of last week, when the 40-cent cotton bull operators were routed, the market had opened with advances today. The Liverpool market broke one penny, the maximum permitted for one day under war rules on the exchange. Selling orders which could not be taken care of there were cabled to this side, throwing immense selling pressure into the local market.

Taken Ill on Street.

About 11 o'clock morning Joseph Gregory, who has been working in the brush factory downtown, was taken ill at the corner of Murray and Chambers streets. He was removed to his home, 23 Rondout street, by Officers Welch and Kuehn in the police Franklin. Mr. Gregory is afflicted with heart trouble.

Ran His Car Without Lights.

Morris Miller, the down town baker, ran his automobile on Broadway Sunday evening without having the lights lighted. He was arrested by Officer Hess and this morning paid a fine of $3 in police court.

COAL ADVANCED 15 CENTS A TON

This morning the retail price of coal in Kingston was advanced fifteen cents a ton. This advance is due to the fact that the freight rate on coal has been advanced fifteen cents a ton which the coal dealer has to pay. Retail delivered prices for coal today are: Egg size, $8.15; stove, $8.35; and chestnut, $8.45 per ton. The local dealers are accepting orders for next winter's burning at prices ruling date of delivery.

Along the Water Front.

The Skillypot is still off the route between Rondout and Sloatsburg. The ferry Highlander plying between West Point and Garrison came into the Rondout creek today under her own power and proceeded to Hiltbrand's shipyard where she was hauled out for repairs.

Heavy shipments of freight are being made from the Coxackie terminal of the Catskill Evening Line by the steamer Storm King. The Central Hudson Line at this port is also handling heavy freight.

Isaiah Was Drunk.

Isaiah Shultz, of Saugerties, who as employed as a cook at the Kingston Hotel, got drunk Sunday evening and raised a disturbance. He was arrested by Officers Simpson and Martin and after spending the night in jail was discharged with a reprimand this morning by Judge Schirck in police court.

YOUR VOTE TOMORROW-- MAKE IT YES, FOR KINGSTON!

WHY?

What would you say if the Allies hoped to win a battle or a whole campaign by shooting off one gun, or using but one battleship? Think!

It is the united efforts of millions of guns and thousands of ships that are holding the line on the battle front of Freedom.

What would you say if only Kingston's boys were conscripted to fight the enemy on the western front? Would they win and settle the question decisively for the rest of the country, or the world? Think.

Isn't the united efforts of ten million other young men in other cities who are adding their force to those of Kingston and to the other millions of our Allies who are successfully holding the line. Think.

What do you say about conscripting every citizen of Kingston--every visitor to Kingston and forcing them to not drink in Kingston?

Will that stop them from going to Saugerties, Rosendale, Rhinebeck, Port Ewen or Poughkeepsie? and spending their money there?--for food and clothing as well?

Don't you think that if liquor were to be prohibited in Kingston it should be done at a time when it will be also prohibited in Saugerties, Rosendale, Rhinebeck, Port Ewen, and Poughkeepsie?

Think, right on down the line, and you will see that if you conscript only Kingston against the liquor question, you are fighting what should and ultimately will be a state and national problem with only the single gun of Kingston. Do you expect to win a battle that way? THINK!

Do you think Kingston locally can settle a question that requires the co-operation of the whole state and nation? Think!

Local Option in one town does not prohibit it in a neighboring town. If a man goes to a town and buys a drink he is going to spend money there also for food and clothing. Remember that! Furthermore, he will buy more than he wants because of the distance he has had to go for it. Remember that also!

Local Option for Kingston does not settle the liquor question for the state or nation or even for Kingston, but Local Option does make it

MIGHTY UNFAIR FOR KINGSTON

WE are against Local Option because it is unfair to Kingston.

YOU are against Local Option because it is unfair to Kingston.

WE are against Local Option because we believe it a matter of state and national legislation and not a question to be decided locally at a time when surrounding towns are running wide open to the detriment of the welfare of Kingston.

YOU are against Local Option because what you can't get in Kingston you CAN GET a few miles away, and if you are going to be "prohibited" it is only fair that your neighbor be "prohibited" too. This can be accomplished only through state referendum and not through local politics.

Think! Isn't that so?

Vote "Yes" On All Questions Tomorrow!

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The Home Defense Committee having put in a plea or in other words sent in a request for the use of the high school auditorium for Friday night, April 26, the entertainment which was to have been given on that night by the school has been postponed until either Monday or Tuesday night of the following week. The entertainment is in charge of Miss Noone, Miss Phillips and Mr. Buley. It will consist of a short play; a few selections by the Glee Club, and drills by the students of Mr. Buley's classes. The proceeds are for the purpose of paying for a victrola which is used in the physical culture class.

At the meeting of the Senior Class last week Russell Dana was elected Prime Minister for May Day. Mr. Dana is also chairman of the committee in charge of the May Day exercises.

The announcement in last Thursday night's Freeman that the Senior dance had been postponed until April 26 was a mistake. It should have been the 19th of April. So please do not allow your engagements to become confused. If you have made arrangements to attend the Senior dance, remember that it is to be held on Friday evening, April 19. The music will be furnished by Palen's orchestra.

As a result of the girls' mass meeting held last Wednesday afternoon, over two hundred high school girls have pledged themselves to work at least one hour a week making surgical dressings for the Red Cross.

After reading the editorial in last Wednesday evening's Freeman, the Seniors have again written to Arthur Guy Empey, hoping that they may yet be able to secure him to lecture in the high school auditorium to the citizens of Kingston.

There Are Always Others.

In every circumstance of our lives the stirring knowledge that one's own cause, however strange, is far from being singular. There are others besides himself with whom Poverty has taken up its abode; there are others from whose cup Despair has daily drunk; who, looking up from their daily bread, have found Sorrow's eyes forever on them.—Laura Spencer Porter, in the Atlantic.

No Joke.

A. A. S. claims that a man will steal all the postage stamps he needs from his employer, and think nothing of it. But if he sees a street car conductor knock down a nickel he thinks he ought to notify the company.

Environmental Influence.
To understand fully the effect of environmental influence requires a pretty good understanding of the native qualities of the material upon which the environment acts. The reaction of differently formed human beings is never exactly the same even when the environmental action on them is nearly identical. "You can't," as David Starr Jordan is wont to say, to explain some failures of college endeavor, "put a thousand-dollar education into a fifty-dollar boy."—Vernon Kellogg, in the Atlantic.

Remedies for Warts.
Those who are fortunate enough to be able to look back into the past and recall boyhood days on the farm will remember the old formula for the removal of warts. It ran like this: "Steal a piece of pork and rub the wart with it. If this does not prove effective, rub with a kernel of corn, bore a hole in a tree (one in a graveyard was preferable), put the corn in the hole and fill it up, and your wart will soon leave you."

Largest Hens' Eggs.
The largest hens' eggs are produced in Manchuria, those weighing one-sixth of a pound being common.

Consider Well Before You Vote

On April 16, under the Local Option Law, the people of Kingston will be called upon, at a special election, to answer four questions that will be submitted to them with regard to the sale of liquors in Kingston.

Shall our American Constitution—up to now a plan of government and a guarantee of personal rights—be converted into a prohibition of personal liberties?

If a majority of the voters answer these questions in the negative, the City of Kingston will lose annually more than $43,000. which it will otherwise receive from the State in revenue from the liquor tax to be applied by the City of Kingston to the relief pro-rata of every one of its taxpayers in the payment of his taxes.

Shall fewer than 5,000 men be permitted to control the liberties of 100,000,000, without those 100,000,000 having a single word to say?

This money had been paid to Kingston heretofore by those who choose to drink.

May not the people, and the whole people, have a chance to inform themselves about this thing, to think about it, and then to vote on it?

But if Kingston votes against the sale of liquor, that amount of money, instead of relieving the general rent-payer and tax-payer, must be, in the future and in ever-increasing amount provided by him.

Yes, wheat is needed for the war. But must everybody grow wheat when his soil and his climate won't do it, but would grow hops and grapes?

In answering the four questions that will be submitted to the voter on April 16, therefore, if he writes "Yes," it will mean that liquor may continue to be sold, and the rent-payer and tax-payer may continue to be relieved in their obligations to the State by what the State turns over to them from the liquor tax.

36 Legislatures, fewer than 5,000 men, can change the American Constitution and make it forbid our personal liberties.

If he writes "No," it will mean that they, the general tax-payers, lose this $43,000.; and a larger sum every year and, with their taxes ever increasing, must make up the deficiency.

It might be all right for the force of fewer than 5,000 men to give to us a permanent guarantee of rights and liberties and freedom—
But should it be permitted to fewer than 5,000 men to deny a RIGHT to 100,000,000 of other men—even a right that some of us might abuse—without our having a chance to say anything about it?

This economic question, therefore, enters into the sense of the answers that every voter must make and at a time when the drain upon his income is a strain upon his labor that he never before has known.

When he writes on the ballot "Yes" or "No," therefore, he will write his wish to take upon his shoulders, or not to do so, that greater burden, whatever it may come to be, than the present law, National, State, county and municipal, imposes.

Why Not Postpone the Whole Matter and Get a Referendum to the People?

BERRY SHRUB

By FRANCES LINSKY.

(Copyright, 1918, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was a typical summer hotel veranda. At least so thought a personing and very much disgusted young man who looked up at it from the bottom of the somewhat steep and very dusty hill.

"An Adamless Eden, I'll warrant," he muttered.

Brown as a young Indian from weeks of outdoor camp life, and covered with dust and perspiration, certainly no one would have recognized in this very bedraggled young man Max Harding, whose aristocratic mother was a guest at the hotel on the hill.

Scowling fiercely, he dragged his heavy suitcase up the path, only to be met at the veranda steps by a pompous-looking individual who effectually barred his further progress.

"Can't come up the front way, fellow," said the pompous one.

"What the devil—" and then as the full significance of the servant's remark struck him, Max Harding burst into a laugh.

"Maybe I can sneak in through the kitchen and get washed up before I greet the mater," he thought. "If she ever catches me looking like this—Hello, where—ow—ow," and he whistled softly, for a remarkably pretty girl sat directly in front of the kitchen door, shelling peas—thus once more blocking his progress.

"Have you a moment to spare," he asked, removing his hat, and speaking in his most engaging manner.

"I am sorry, but I haven't," said the young woman, very promptly, scarcely glancing up from her work.

"Oh, ho," thought he, "not much enthusiasm here. May I show you some of my wares?" with an expressive glance in the direction of the suitcase.

"You may not," said the young woman, just as promptly as before.

"Well, do you mind if I sit down on the lawn's minute?" he hazarded for his third venture.

"I do not," again responded the "fair lady of the peas," taking him in with one all-appraising glance.

So Max sat down on the little plot of grass in front of the house, and leaned his head back against the building, and closed his eyes.

"Poor fellow," thought the girl, her sympathy aroused at last, "he must be pretty tired. I'm afraid I was rather sharp with him. Well, he looks dark enough for one of those Syrian or Armenian peddlers, but he certainly doesn't talk like one. I'll just run in and get him a glass of raspberry shrub. I'll cool him off before he goes."

She was back in a moment with a glass of delicious looking liquid, and, tapping the young man on the shoulder, she offered it to him.

"Here, drink this," she said. "I'm sorry I couldn't stop to look at your wares. Have you made many sales today?"

"No, no one, answered Max, quite truthfully, and he swallowed the refreshing drink with genuine appreciation. Then, with many thanks, he bent a hasty retreat around to the front of the house once more.

"This time his mother was seated on the veranda, and she greeted him effusively, but he managed to make her understand that a bath and some clean linen were the two most essential things in his life at that particular moment, and so he escaped to his room.

He descended about an hour later, looking very different in his white flannels, and his mother's pride shone in her eyes as she greeted him.

"And, Max," she said, "there's the loveliest girl here. I want you to meet her. Her name is Anna Cabot."

"Now, mother," he remonstrated.

"But, Max, dear, this one is different! But wait—she's promised to sit at our table tonight, and you'll see for yourself."

"Well, no sign of your divinity yet, mother," said Max, some minutes later, when they had started their dinner; perhaps—hopelessly—"she's changed her mind."

"No, here she comes," said Mrs. Harding, and straight to their table came the lady of his afternoon's adventure.

Lifting her eyes to acknowledge the introduction, the color flooded into the girl's face, and her eyes asked innumerable questions as she recognized him.

"Do you know that Katie the cook left this afternoon?" asked the girl of Mrs. Harding some moments later, when she was herself again.

"Good gracious," gasped that lady. "Who took her place?"

"I did," said the girl, quietly, measuring glances with the young man opposite her.

"Why, my dear, aren't you clever?" exclaimed his mother, looking at her son with an "I told you so" expression.

Just then the waitress entered the dining room with liquid refreshments clanking in a silver picher.

"By-the-way, Miss Cabot," said Max. "Since I understand that you are 'up in such matters—what drink would you recommend as the most cooling and refreshing for these hot days, as well as most economical?"

"Why," said the girl, daintily raising her glass as he raised his, "why—raspberry shrub."

And over their glasses their eyes met in a look of complete understanding.

Abie Bacharach Celebrates His 10th Birthday With a Bouquet of Flowers—Police Department Will Be Busy.

What's the bouquet of flowers doing on the desk of Judge Schrick? asked the Casual Visitor as he glanced into police court at the city hall this morning.

"They were placed there by Abie Bacharach," explained the City Hall Oracle.

"What was the idea?" asked the Casual Visitor.

"Abie is celebrating his 10th birthday," replied the City Hall Oracle.

"I suppose the police department will be busy Tuesday," said the Casual Visitor changing the subject.

"They sure will," replied the City Hall Oracle, "for election will be held both Tuesday and Wednesday."

"That means a lot of work for you," remarked the Casual Visitor.

"It means that the department will have to appoint a lot of special," explained the City Hall Oracle.

"How is that?" queried the Casual Visitor.

"There are not enough regulars to do the job," explained the City Hall Oracle, "for it will need twenty-six men."

"As many as that?" asked the Casual Visitor surprised.

"Sure," explained the City Hall Oracle, "it needs thirteen men during the day and thirteen men at night, one on duty all the time at even of the thirteen pollings places."

"That's right too," commented the Casual Visitor.

BISHOP DEDICATES MEMORIAL LIGHTS

Every available seat was occupied at St. John's Episcopal Church on Sunday evening when the Rev. Charles S. Burch, Suffragan Bishop of New York, confirmed a class of sixteen young people and later dedicated the beautiful and artistic lights just installed in the church. These lights which are formed like an inverted bell, hang from each cross piece of the ceiling of the church, diffusing a soft and very pleasant light which reaches the farthest corners of the church, and having been especially designed are both artistic and appropriate to the architectural scheme of the edifice. They were dedicated by the bishop as a memorial to the Green family, "all of whom now rest in Paradise," and were given by the late Mrs. Jessie Green Preston.

The beauty of the church was further enhanced by the altar decorations of Easter lilies. The musical part of the service, under the direction of Organist Harry P. Dodge, was especially fine.

Bishop Burch in addressing the congregation and class just confirmed, took for his text I John 1:1-3. Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is.

If the beginning the writer of the Epistle positively rejected in the honor of this divine sonship, then with some doubt and hesitancy he questioned what should follow, but triumphantly noted that the son shall be like the father in the perfection of time and character.

The Bishop showed the joys, the duties and the responsibilities of "The sonship of God" which called for the most absolute obedience, even such as we demand of every soldier in our armies and navies today. It also required discipline self-discipline, and the Bishop was most emphatic in his expression of the opinion that such training in self-discipline, self-control was one of the greatest needs today of the American people, who are pleasure loving, extravagant and wasteful to a degree. He called attention to the recent address given by Archbishop York of England, before the great audience in Carnegie Hall, where, without bitterness, he so poignantly depicted the difference between the people of London today and of New York. The bishop hoped that out of this terrible war, we as a people might be saved from our materialism, extravagance and selfishness and raised to a higher spiritual level than we have ever experienced. Penitence was another quality of divine sonship, and a most unpopular one said Bishop Burch and was followed by repentance. Then there must be charity that great charity so comprehensive, pictured by St. Paul so impressively. In fact this charity or love was shown to be the foundation of the divine sonship, which makes every son a member of God's family. A few impressive words were then addressed to the members of the confirmation class, the Bishop giving them as their life motto, "I will continue." To continue to fulfill the many beautiful and difficult obligations of divine sonship until one's life's end, as a "Child of God," the Bishop counted to be the very best legacy that any man or woman could leave to the world.

GOOD IN OLD DAYS

Modern Life by No Means Has Monopoly of Virtues.

And Prominent Among the Things It Lacks Is That "Neighborhood" That Meant So Much in the Bygone Years.

Neighborhood is a product of rural localities that deserves transplantation to cities, and sedulous nurture there that it may continue to grow. "Who, then, is my neighbor?" the man "in the city pent" asks himself, as he regards a row of similar house fronts and reflects on the fact that he has only a nodding acquaintance at best with the majority of the inmates.

Independence is fostered by the conditions of living in the country. Ordinarily we do not need the help of the next house, near or far. But let fire come, or a destructive storm, or a predatory visitor, or a serious illness, and the neighbor may be as welcome as angels.

City life is often a battle of the strong, because there are crowds and there are many mouths to feed and many shuffling feet to be shod. If we let ourselves think of it, the vast multitude of identities striving to establish themselves is almost terrifying. Where did so many people come from? Where are they going? How are they to find a lodging for the night? Each of the moving swarms is the center of a circle of friends. The humblest, unless deeply unfortunate, has ties that bind him to earth and make life in a degree dear to him.

Out of the pagan wilderness to the urban lights and roarings comes but little youth. What will the city do to that unsophistication? Or in what way will its rugged, innocent power in time come to prevail upon the city?

Your shrewdest, hardest captain of business closes his eyes at his desk and is taken back to murmurous water-brooks and bees, to the aroma of hay, of kine, of burning leaves, to the sound of the whetted scythe or the sicut of hooked apples in the window of the woodshed.

Why can't they brown flapjacks or bake beans or concoct apple sauce or cook asparagus as they did down on the farm?

The table was always big enough for the unexpected guest. An egg or a quart of milk was no such great event as it is in the city. There used

New York State Hotel Association

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

334 Fifth Avenue, at 33d Street,
New York City.

April 11th, 1918.

To the Voters of Kingston:

As an officer of the New York State Hotel Association for the past twenty-five years I have been familiar with hotel conditions in Kingston, and know that its hotels are a credit to your city. There is no better advertisement for a growing, progressive city than good hotels, and those of Kingston are as good as any in the State.

Of all the patrons of your hotels a large majority are accustomed to the use of beer, wine or other refreshments with their meals. The large class of automobile tourists who visit your city because of the good reputation of your hotels, are moderate, temperate users of these beverages, and if they could not procure them would go elsewhere. There are numerous other license towns and cities in your vicinity, and the motor traffic would go to these places instead of to Kingston. Commercial travelers and other business men would make it a point not to stay in your city when they could go to a nearby city.

You are about to vote on the license question. I am writing this with a sense of the obligation that the great hotel industry of the state owes to such well-managed, orderly and law-abiding hotels as those of your city. I believe that by voting no-license you will not only injure these hotels but also other business interests that will be affected by diverting from Kingston many persons who now visit it. It is certain that with reduced patronage and increased charges for food and lodging, that no-license will make necessary, it will be impossible for your hotels to maintain their high standards and that some of them, at least, will not be able to remain in the business. In view of these facts I trust that you will decide to vote to license your hotels, so that they may continue to serve your people and the traveling public as well as in the past.

Respectfully yours,

GEO. A. FARNHAM, President

New York State Hotel Association.

"Black Stones"

Philadelphia long looked with suspicion on the "black stones," the first of which came to the city in 1786 or 1787. Some of this importation from Wilkes-barre was distributed among the shipwrights and smiths, but most of it was taken to the cellar of Robert Morris' partner, John Nicholson. When he was thrown into prison for debt, these who seized the valuables in his house threw the coal out on Franklin square, regarding it as rubbish. One historian says that an early printer issued handbills printed in both German and English, explaining the method of burning the coal. "They went also to blacksmiths' shops, exhibited certificates from smiths who had successfully used the new fuel, and sometimes bribed the journeymen to make the experiment fairly. All this availed very little." It was not until 1819 that a newspaper advertised the fuel, though within six years of that time it had won its way to the coal bins of the citizens of Philadelphia. John I. Faris.

And More Honest.

A gracious refusal is better than an ungracious gift.

to be time, too, to settle the affairs of the borough and the nation, to discuss Horace Greeley, and to wind the clock, between supper and early bedtime.

We have filtration, and the vacuum cleaner, and the servant question, and all the other city advantages. But it was something to know the neighbors, and somehow or other "the men that were boys when I was a boy" mean something in a lifetime that the brick, ambitious, clean-shaven, up-pushing generation does not convey. It would do these take-it-or-leave-it fellows good to study the large, leisurely, tranquillizing ways of their forebears in the days when "civilization" was not on a tear from the cheap lunch to the bargain counter, and home was not a way station between the joy ride and the moving pictures.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

To Keep Pet Fish Healthy.

Remember never to subject the fish in your aquarium to an abrupt change of temperature in their water. When the water becomes stagnant, replace it partially with fresh, or when it is desired to clean the aquarium, siphon out the debris that has collected along the bottom with a small rubber hose and add fresh water. Rain or well water is better than filtered water. When the fish come to the top, it is a sign that they need oxygen, and fresh water should at once be given them. Always have water plants in the aquarium. Root these firmly in the pebbles, or, preferably, in small pots filled with sand. Snails and tadpoles also help keep the aquarium in condition, as they feed upon the debris. The best species of watergrass is the common Washington grass of our ponds and lakes.

Effect of Gold Discoveries.

The value of gold diminishes and general prices rise on each important discovery of gold, which is likely to increase the quantity of money in circulation. The greatest revolution in prices occurred after the discovery of America. This started about 1492 and happened again in 1554, when Mexican and Peruvian currency invaded Europe. In ancient times, China and Persia, so late, the value of land increased fully two-thirds because of the influx of gold brought back by Paolo Emilio following the conquest of Macedonia.

Never Learned It.

We asked the young lady across the way if she ever used the thesaurus when she had anything to write and she said she'd never learned to operate it and still used her fountain pen.

CHARGED WITH THEFT OF TIRES

This afternoon Sergeant Hanley arrested Robert Gibbons, a negro on a warrant sworn out by Adelbert Chambers of the Stuyvesant Garage, charging Robert with stealing two automobile tires, valued at $52. The charge entered against Robert in the police blotter is grand larceny in the second degree. He will be arraigned in police court Tuesday.

Belief in Amulets.

The phylacteries of the Jews—slips of parchment with passages of the Law written on them, bound on the forehead or the left arm—while originally worn as emblems of piety, came to be regarded as a kind of charm or amulet. Some of the early Christians heretics made and sold charms of a similar kind. Among the Russian peasants at the present day sentences from Scripture written out on small pieces of paper and enclosed in a little bag are hung from the neck and worn as charms. Immediately over the heart. In some districts in Germany a similar practice is found. Sentences from the Koran have always been regarded by Mahometans as a sovereign protection against evil spirits.

The Change.

"Through the haze of years I look back at a figure which impressed me heavily in my callow days the village big man of the old home town," recently admitted the Old Coder. "I recall the absolute finality of his bombastic verbosity, the overpowering supereminence of his stately strut, the imposing impressiveness of his masterful pomposity and the awe with which his majestic presence filled me, because then I had gained so little experience with men that I had no standard to judge by. To me he was the embodiment of human wisdom set on the pinnacle of earthly importance. But I am pleased to say that I know now that he did not amount to any more than I do at present."—Kansas City Star

HIGH SCHOOL NEWS NOTES

The Home Defense Committee having put in a plea or in other words sent in a request for the use of the high school auditorium for Friday night, April 26, the entertainment which was to have been given on that night by the school has been postponed until either Monday or Tuesday night of the following week. The entertainment is in charge of Miss Noon, Miss Phillips and Mr. Buley. It will consist of a short play; a few selections by the Glee Club, and drills by the students of Mr. Buley's classes. The proceeds are for the purpose of paying for a victrola which is used in the physical culture classes.

At the meeting of the Senior Class last week Russell Dana was elected Prime Minister for May Day. Mr. Dana is also chairman of the committee in charge of the May Day exercises.

The announcement in last Thursday night's Freeman that the Senior dance had been postponed until April 26 was a mistake. It should have been the 19th of April. So please do not allow your engagements to become confused. If you have made arrangements to attend the Senior dance, remember that it is to be held on Friday evening, April 19. The music will be furnished by the school orchestra.

As a result of the girls' mass meeting held last Wednesday afternoon, over two hundred high school girls have pledged themselves to work at least one hour a week making surgical dressings for the Red Cross.

After reading the editorial in last Wednesday evening's Freeman, the students have again written to Arthur Guy Empey, hoping that they may yet be able to secure him to lecture in the high school auditorium to the citizens of Kingston.

There Are Always Others.

In every circumstance of our lives the stirring knowledge that one's own case, however strange, is far from being singular. There are others besides myself with whom Poverty has taken up its abode; there are others from whose cup Despair has daily drunk; who, looking up from their daily bread, have found Sorrow's eyes forever on them—Laura Spencer Porter, in the Atlantic.

Environmental Influence.

To understand fully the effect of environmental influence requires a pretty good understanding of the native qualities of the material upon which the environment acts. The reaction of differently formed human beings is never exactly the same even when the environmental action on them is nearly identical. "You can't," as David Starr Jordan is wont to say, to explain some failures of college endeavor, "put a thousand-dollar education into a fifty-dollar boy."—Vernon Kellogg, in the Atlantic.

Remedies for Warts.

Those who are fortunate enough to be able to look back into the past and recall boyhood days on the farm will remember the old formula for the removal of warts. It ran like this: "Steal a piece of pork and rub the wart with it. If this does not prove effective, rub with a kernel of corn, bore a hole in a tree (one in a graveyard was preferable), put the corn in the hole and fill it up, and your wart will soon leave you."
